The students of Oxford Colleges underwent a fire-response exercise last Monday, February 5, 2018. Due to the recent event of fire in Central London, the school executives decided that it would be helpful to do so. From conducting demo on how to extinguish fire effectively so it won't engulf the whole building to the dos and don'ts of evacuation protocol, everything was covered in the said exercise. The Fire Department expected that people would keep these tips in mind and building owners in the surrounding area are also reminded of the importance of proper emergency exit. In the next couple of months, Oxford will be conducting more disaster response drills and will maintain extreme caution at all times.
